GRANITE

Granite is a light-coloured igneous rock with grains large enough to be visible with the unaided eye. It forms from the slow crystallization of magma below Earth's surface.

Granite is composed mainly of quartz and feldspar with minor amounts of mica, amphiboles, and other minerals. This mineral composition usually gives granite a red, pink, grey, or white colour with dark mineral grains visible throughout the rock.

Granite is nearly always massive (lacking any internal structures), hard and tough, and therefore it has gained widespread use throughout human history as a construction stone.

Granite is used to make many objects that we encounter in daily life. These include counter tops, floor tiles, paving stone, curbing, stair treads, building veneer, and cemetery monuments

Most monuments are made from granite because of its

- a. Durability
- b. Reasonable price
- c. Weathering and abrasion resistant feature
- d. Bears significant weight and can be polished to a shine
- e. Availability in a wide range of colours

There are 3 different levels of granite.

Level 1 (Low Grade Granite),
Level 2 (Mid-Grade Level) and
Level 3 + (High Grade Granite).

The grade of the granite slab can be determined by colours, veins, pitting, marking, thickness, the amount of soft materials it has, and the country where it was quarried.
